

What's the first major news story you can remember living through as a child?

The first major news story I can faintly remember is when World War II ended. I was only eight years old but in the back of my mind I can remember my Mother in the kitchen ironing when the announcement was made over the radio. My parents were very excited and happy to hear this.

Robert Fenneman

September 2, 1945